

Wendy G. Lichtenthal, PhD, FT is Founding Director of the Center to Advance Bereavement Science, Training, and Care at the Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center and Associate Professor, Pending Rank, in the Division of Prevention Science and Community Health, Department of Public Health Sciences in the Miller School of Medicine at the University of Miami. She is a clinical psychologist and has worked as a grief specialist for 20 years. Since 2005, she has been at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, where she was Founding Director of the Bereavement Clinic and Associate Attending Psychologist, and where she now serves as Consultant Faculty. She was a recipient of the 2012 International Psycho-Oncology Society Kawano New Investigator Award, the 2019 Association for Death Education and Counseling Research Recognition Award, and the 2023 American Psychosocial Oncology Society Outstanding Clinical Care Award. She was elected to the Board of Directors for the Association for Death Education and Counseling in 2023. Her National Institutes of Health-funded research has focused on prolonged grief disorder, grief intervention development, and identifying the bereaved in greatest need.